

About the authors

Wiesław Caban, Ph.D., Professor of History at Jan Kochanowski University, Kielce. Areas of expertise: 19th century Polish Uprisings (esp. January Uprising), Polish-Russian relations.
E-mail address: caban@ujk.edu.pl

Chang Se-yun, Ph.D., Chief Research Fellow, Managing Editor of Journal of Northeast Asian History, Northeast Asian History Foundation. Areas of expertise: modern and contemporary history of Korea, Korean Independence Movement against Japan (Korean National Movement in North-eastern China), Korea-Japan and Korea-China relations.
E-mail address: seiyoon@dreamwiz.com

Miroslaw Filipowicz, Ph.D., Professor of History at John Paul II Catholic University of Lublin. Head of the Institute of East-Central Europe, the leader of the Polish side of the Polish-Russian Group for Difficult Matters, since 2016 the Plenipotentiary of the Minister of Foreign Affairs for the Polish-Russian Group for Difficult Matters. Areas of expertise: history of historiography, methodology of history.
E-mail address: mirfil1963@icloud.com

Piotr Gluszkowski, Ph.D., Assistant Professor at the Institute of Russian Studies, University of Warsaw. Areas of expertise: Russian and Soviet history, history of Russian literature.
E-mail address: gluszkowski@gmail.com

Kim Jong-hak, Ph.D., Research Fellow, Northeast Asian History Foundation. Areas of expertise: diplomatic history of East Asia, Korea-Japan relations, Korea nationalism.
E-mail address: kimjh@nahf.or.kr

Kim Yongdeog, Ph.D., Associate Professor, Department of Polish Studies, Hankuk University of Foreign Studies. Areas of expertise: history of Poland, Poland-Germany relations, East European politics.
E-mail address: kimwielki@hanmail.net

Nam Sang-gu, Ph.D., Research Fellow, Northeast Asian History Foundation. Areas of expertise: history conflicts and reconciliation in East Asia, historical issues between Korea and Japan (Yasukuni Shrine, Japanese 'comfort women', Japanese history textbooks), Japan's aggression war and colonial memory.
E-mail address: nsggg@nahf.or.kr

Marek Radziwon, Ph.D., Institute of East-Central Europe, Lublin, former Head of the Polish Culture Institute in Moscow. Areas of expertise: Soviet history, Soviet Dissident Movement.
E-mail address: marek.radziwon@gmail.com